

CLIMATE CHANGE AND GENDER IN RICH COUNTRIES

Work, Public Policy and Action

Edited by Marjorie Griffin Cohen

 Routledge
Taylor & Francis Group
LONDON AND NEW YORK

earthscan
from Routledge

CONTENTS

List of figures	xii
List of tables	xiii
Contributors	xiv
Acknowledgements	xix

PART I

Context and overview 1

- 1 Introduction: Why gender matters when dealing with climate change 3
Marjorie Griffin Cohen
- 2 Masculinities of global climate change: Exploring ecomodern, industrial and ecological masculinity 19
Martin Hultman and Jonas Anshelm
- 3 It's not just the numbers: Challenging masculinist working practices in climate change decision-making in UK government and environmental non-governmental organizations 35
Susan Buckingham and Rakibe Külcür

PART II

Challenges for paid and unpaid work 53

- 4 Women and low energy construction in Europe: A new opportunity? 55
Linda Clarke, Colin Gleeson and Christine Wall

x Contents

5	Renewable inequity? Women's employment in clean energy in industrialized, emerging and developing economies Bipasha Baruah	70
6	UK environmental and trade union groups' struggles to integrate gender issues into climate change analysis and activism Carl Mandy	87
7	Transporting difference at work: Taking gendered intersectionality seriously in climate change agendas Leonora C. Angeles	103
8	The US example of integrating gender and climate change in training: Response to the 2008–9 recession Marjorie Griffin Cohen	119
PART III
Vulnerability, insecurity and work		131
9	Gendered outcomes in post-disaster sites: Public policy and resource distribution Margaret Alston	133
10	Climate change, traditional roles and work: Interactions in the Inuit Nunangat Michael Kim	150
11	Towards humane jobs: Recognizing gendered and multispecies intersections and possibilities Kendra Coulter	167
PART IV
Rural and resource communities		183
12	"Maybe tomorrow will be better": Gender and farm work in a changing climate Amber J. Fletcher	185
13	Understanding the gendered labours of adaptation to climate change in forest-based communities through different models of analysis Maureen G. Reed	199

x Contents

- 5 Renewable inequity? Women's employment in clean energy in industrialized, emerging and developing economies 70
Bipasha Baruah
- 6 UK environmental and trade union groups' struggles to integrate gender issues into climate change analysis and activism 87
Carl Mandy
- 7 Transporting difference at work: Taking gendered intersectionality seriously in climate change agendas 103
Leonora C. Angeles
- 8 The US example of integrating gender and climate change
in training: Response to the 2008–9 recession 119
Marjorie Griffin Cohen

PART III

Vulnerability, insecurity and work 131

- 9 Gendered outcomes in post-disaster sites:
Public policy and resource distribution 133
Margaret Alston
- 10 Climate change, traditional roles and work: Interactions
in the Inuit Nunangat 150
Michael Kim
- 11 Towards humane jobs: Recognizing gendered and multispecies intersections and possibilities 167
Kendra Coulter

PART IV

Rural and resource communities 183

- 12 "Maybe tomorrow will be better":
Gender and farm work in a changing climate 185
Amber J. Fletcher
- 13 Understanding the gendered labours of adaptation to climate change in forest-based communities through different models of analysis 199
Maureen G. Reed

14	The complex impacts of intensive resource extraction on women, children and Aboriginal peoples: Towards contextually-informed approaches to climate change and health	215
	Maya K. Gislason, Chris Buse, Shayna Dolan, Margot W. Parkes, Jemma Tosh and Bob Woollard
PART V
	Public policy and activism	231
15	How a gendered understanding of climate change can help shape Canadian climate policy	233
	Nathalie J. Chalifour
16	The integration of gender in climate change mitigation and adaptation in Québec: Silos and possibilities	250
	Annie Rochette
17	Urban form through the lens of gender relations and climate change: Cases from North America and Europe	266
	Penny Gurstein and Sara Ortiz Escalante
18	Canadian Indigenous female leadership and political agency on climate change	282
	Patricia E. Perkins
19	Using information about gender and climate change to inform green economic policies	297
	Marjorie Griffin Cohen
	Index	315